THE ODD FELLOWS.

The following is reproduced from the "Three Links," the Lexington Odd Fellows' paper:

"Stanford Lodge, No. 156, I. O. O. F., located at Stanford, Lincoln county, Ky., was organized on the 16th day of June, 1866, with the following named charter members: A. J. Daugherty, John B. Dennis, George K. Purdon, S. P. Douglas and D. R. Camden.

After organizing the lodge, Grand Master John D. Pollard delivered an earnest address to the members, urging them to keep up the work so nobly begun. How well this injunction has been heeded is told by the history of the lodge. It started as a working lodge and has held that reputation to the present time. During the 30 years of its existence it has missed only two meetings from want of a quorum.

From the beginning the roll of members has contained the names of some of the best citizens of the community, and to their fidelity in carrying out the principles of the Order is due the prosperity and success that has constantly attended their efforts.

The Spring of 1884 found the lodge in a flourishing condition, with a large and increasing membership. Having bought and fitted up a lodge room, on the night of the 13th of March of that year they lost all by fire lodge room, furniture, paraphernalia and books. A lodge composed of less enterprising material would have become discouraged; but not so with these. We see by the records that at the meeting following the fire a candidate was initiated, the meeting being held in the corridor of the court-house.

The fire proved a blessing in disguise. But for it the edifice would not have been built. Within a few months from the time of the fire a new Hall was built, without outside aid, and without a cent of indebtedness on it.

Because of the burning of the records exact data can not be obtained as to the number of members that have been initiated, but men can be found from California to Maine, from the Gulf to the Lakes, who learned their first lessons of human beneficence in Stanford Lodge No. 156.

Some have dropped out, many have been followed over the hill to the beautiful white city, and with loving brotherly hands their bodies laid to rest amid the evergreens, while the memory of their noble work in behalf of Friendship, Love and Truth serves as an incentive to those who remain to renewed zeal in their efforts for the good of mankind.

The lodge has paid out thousands of dollars for the relief of distress and the care of widows and orphans, obeying the command to visit the sick, relieve the distressed, bury the dead and educate the orphan.

The lodge at present is in a good financial condition. Besides the lodge fund there is several thousand dollars in the widows' and orphans' fund, no encumbrance on their building and no debts.

Viewing the future by the light of past experience, we predict for the lodge a bright future and "when the roll is called up yonder," among those receiving honor for the good they have done on earth will appear the names of many who have been enrolled upon the books of Stanford Lodge, No. 156. So mote it be.

Almost every man in America has some digestive trouble. When men meet the greeting usually is, "Well, how are you?" That develops health talk. The man who has no well or stomach trouble is almost a curiosity. The trouble is men take no care of themselves. They eat as they had copper stomachs and bowels of brass. By and by overworked nature rebels. Then come headaches, nervousness, bad blood, liver and kidney troubles. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets furnish help for constipation and torpid liver, sick and bilious headache, dizziness, sour stomach, loss of appetite, indigestion or dyspepsia, windy belchings, heartburn, pain and distress after eating and kindred derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. Accept no substitute.

There is no joy in this world equal to the happiness of motherhood. A woman's health is her dearest possession. Good looks, good times, happiness, love and its continuance depend on her health. Almost all of the sickness of women is traceable directly or indirectly to some derangement of the organs distinctly feminine. Troubles of this kind are often neglected because a very natural and proper modesty keeps women away from physicians, whose insinuation upon examination and local treatment is generally as useless as it is common. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will do more for them than 50 doctors in 100. It will do more than the hundredth doctor can unless he prescribes it. It is a prescription of Dr. R. V. Pierce, who for 30 years has been chief consulting physician of the World's Dispensary and Invalid's Hotel at Buffalo, N. Y.

Sent at cents in one-cent stamps to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive Dr. Pierce's 100th page "Common Sense Medical Adviser," illustrated.

THE HOUSEHOLD.

Autumn Decorations From Nature's Materials—Almond Cakes For Tea. Turnips In White Sauce.

The artistic arrangement of autumn leaves and grasses is a kind of art work which almost any one who has any natural or acquired artistic taste can produce. Just now it is very much in favor, and many original and beautiful effects can be produced with nature's own material. A very odd receptacle for holding grasses, ferns or berries is made from a very large reed hollowed out and a collection of grasses and ferns placed within. The reed may be gilded and a bright bow of ribbon tied around near its base for a finish. A fine wire may be used to suspend it from the ceiling.

A very pretty basket can be made from reeds by taking fine wire and bending, crossing once over each reed. This holds the basket together. If some other color than the natural one be preferred, it can be gilded or bronzed. Over the ends tie bows of ribbon, which will hide the wire used in its construction. Fill with dried grasses, bright berries or ferns. The blossoms of the wild clematis is very beautiful if dried carefully.

A large gourd hollowed out and painted by the skillful hand of the artist of the family adorned the parlor of a country house visited last summer. The gourd was painted an olive green, with gold inside. Bunches of holly leaves and berries decorated this unique receptacle for autumn treasures. It was filled with thistle and milkweed pom-poms. An ordinary stone jar of good shape may be painted dark red or brown and decorated with ferns, flowers or birds.

Ginger jars may be converted into things of beauty by a little taste. A bunch of oats or wheat, tied with some handsome ribbon, is a simple and effective decoration within the reach of almost every one.

And, in addition to these items, Good Housekeeping reminds readers what a pretty thing the common ivy is when touched by Jack Frost's icy finger and converted into brilliant reds and yellows. It may be simply pressed between newspapers, changing the papers three or four times.

Covered Dinners.

The new fancy for giving "covered dinners," as the feasts are called to which the women guests are asked to come wearing hats or bonnets, has, perhaps, its inception from the club dinners which last season became quite common. These were held at some public place, a hotel or restaurant, and the women wore usually high dresses and hats as more appropriate to the surroundings. But to invade a private dining room at the evening hour bonneted as if to catch a train detracts from that atmosphere of calm repose and unlimited leisure that is supposed to "stamp the caste of Vere de Vere" and to be in special evidence at the Vere de Vere dinners.

In calling attention to the foregoing the New York Times suggests that the idea comes from a desire for a place to wear the big hats now that the theater frowns upon them so persistently, for the "covered dinners" show more picture hats loaded with flowers and feathers than they do headdress bonnets, as one might expect. Whatever the inspiration, the outcome is to be deplored. Women are obliged to lived so much in bonnets these days—the plaint of the man that he had never, after a three months' engagement, seen his fiancée without a bonnet was more real than whimsical—that they do not need to search for or usurp occasions to wear them.

Almond Cakes For Tea.

A little good puff paste is needed for these. Roll it out to half an inch thick, cut in small rounds and press a hollow in the center. Put a small teaspoonful of the following mixture in the middle and bake in a moderate oven for 20 minutes, taking care they do not brown too quickly. For the mixture take an ounce of fresh butter, 2 dessertspoonfuls of ground almonds, a drop of the essence, the beaten yolks of 2 eggs and a dessertspoonful of powdered sugar. Mix thoroughly together.

Cheese and Cracker Sets.

Delicate beefsteak cracker and cheese sets now shown are greatly to be desired by every housekeeper who wants to have everything new for her table. The pale yellow fluted china, the deep yellow cheese and the crisp browned crackers, together with some delicious old fashioned preserves, such as ginger, orange or peach, which are served with cheese, all go to make an attractive course for a dinner, says the New York Sun.

After Dinner Coffee Spoons.

A novelty in after dinner coffee spoons are what are termed "flower sets." The bowl represents a flower and the handle the stem and leaves. These dainty affairs are enameled in natural shades. Other spoons have on their handles and bowls designs of each month's flowers, also signs of the zodiac, and are called birthday spoons, as each one of the 12 represents a month.

Turnips In White Sauce.

Pare them, boil in salted water until quite tender, then drain and cover with a white sauce made with milk and a little butter, season it rather highly and sprinkle minced parsley over the top of the dish.

Mere Mention.

There are some exceedingly pretty Caudon and Minton china candlesticks in the shops.

Punch cups in all sorts of odd shapes have appeared in Venetian and Bohemian glass.

Turkish coffee cups set in silver frames are expensive, but beautiful.

There are patent lock stoppers, with silver mountings, for the safe keeping of choice liquors.—Jewelers' Circular.
